Subject: Azadi's Uprising

Over the past few decades, Iran has been the scene of a nationwide uprising that has spread to more than 100 cities. The protests were sparked by the death in custody of a young Iranian Kurdish woman, Mahsa Amini, who was arrested for allegedly violating the mandatory hijab law. Her death, along with the death of another young woman, Zahra Rahnizi, and the death of a young man, Amir Anvari, led to a wave of protests that have spread across the country. These protests are a fight for democracy and human rights. Some 700 protesters have been killed, and more than 10,000 people have been arrested and subjected to brutal torture. One of the leaders of the nationwide protests is the leading role of the brave Iranian women, defying the regime and its brutal Revolutionary Guards (IRGC).

Years ago, millions of Iranians joined a revolution, which ended the brutal dictatorship of the Shah, seeking freedom and democracy that they had been denied under the one-party system of the Shah. However, the Shah's police state had devastated the democratic opposition, killing or imprisoning its members, while co-opting the clerical establishment into colluding with it. This resulted in the absolute rule of the clergy.

Iranians, however, have never submitted to religious dictatorship. For more than four decades they have resisted, with great sacrifices. According to some estimates, 100,000 have been killed in political violence, including 10,000 massacred in the summer of 1988, seventy percent of them, and they remained steadfast in their support for the principal opposition group, People's Mojahedin Organization of Iran (PMOI/MEK).

The uprising is rooted in the four decades of religious dictatorship and corruption that had been built up by the government's slogan and their failure to deliver and condemning the methods of repression and security forces point to a significant degree of organization and coordination. The key to the success of the uprising have been the Resistance Fronts affiliated with the PMOI/MEK.

In the past, the Iranian regime has engaged in a sophisticated campaign to mislead the world that a democratic alternative does not exist, spreading the lie that any change to Iran would lead to chaos and instability. This campaign has been supported by the assistance of the deposed and deposed monarchy to the regime of the opposition and to its struggle and demands that any change to the status quo would lead to chaos and instability.

Support for Iran's Uprising

For the past five months, Iran has been the scene of a nationwide uprising that has spread to more than 280 cities. While the protests were sparked by the death in custody of a young Iranian Kurdish woman, Iranians from all walks of life, especially women and young people, have risked their lives and come out onto the streets, calling for an end to the dictatorship. Their goal is a free and democratic Iran. Some 750 protesters, including 71 individuals under the age of 18 and more than 60 women, have been killed by the regime's forces, and more than 30,000 people have been arrested and subjected to brutal torture. One of the most notable attributes of the nationwide protests is the leading role of the brave Iranian women, defying the regime and its brutal Revolutionary Guards (IRGC).

Fourteen years ago, millions of Iranians joined a revolution, which ousted the brutal dictatorship of the Shah's dynasty, seeking freedom and democracy that they had been denied under the one-party system of the Shah's police state had decimated the democratic opposition, killing or imprisoning its members, while co-opting the clerical establishment into colluding with it. This enabled the regime to take advantage of the power vacuum and usurp the leadership of the revolution and gradually re-impose the absolute rule of the clergy.

The people of Iran, however, have never submitted to religious dictatorship. For more than four decades they have shown their resistance, with great sacrifices. According to some estimates, 120,000 have been killed for political reasons, including 30,000 massacred in the summer of 1988, ninety percent of them, who remained steadfast in their support for the principal opposition group, People's Mojahedin Organization of Iran (PMOI/MEK).

The current uprising is rooted in the four decades of organized resistance and sacrifices that had been made by the millions of the protesters, women and young people, in defying and confronting the brutality of the regime and its brutal Revolutionary Guards (IRGC).

At the same time, the Iranian regime has engaged in a sophisticated campaign to mislead the world's public opinion, spreading the lies that are being used to justify the current regime. The Di-rect of this campaign has been preparing the statement of the deposed and deposed monarchy to undermine the unity of the opposition and break its unity and momentum that may change the status quo. The main aim of this campaign is to prevent the people of Iran from recognizing the reality of the regime's brutality and the illegitimacy of its rule. The regime's propaganda is based on the lies that are being used to justify the current regime. The regime's propaganda is based on the lies that are being used to justify the current regime.

For many years, the both sides of the Atlantic, Western governments pursued engagement with Iran in the belief that to build a middle class within the regime whose empowerment would result in behavioral change. This policy has miserably failed. The growing link in this policy was following the success of the Iranian people and their spiritual operations, the National Council of Resistance of Iran (NCRI), whose President Maryam Rajvi has announced a five-point plan to bring about the death penalty, religious freedom and respect for the rights of all minorities, including women, by the revolutionaries such as the Islamic Revolution Party (IRP).

For its part, Europe must join the U.S. in designating Iran as a state sponsor of terrorism to the Middle East, as it did in the case of Cuba, which threatens Europe.

Furthermore, restrictive measures must be taken to prevent Iran from accessing international financial markets and its envoys and agents should be expelled from Europe.

 ntimed their resistance, with great sacrifices. According to some estimates, 120,000 have been
 d for political reasons, including 30,000 massacred in the summer of 1988, ninety percent of them, cause they remained steadfast in their support for the principal opposition group, People's Mojahedin of Iran (PMOI/MEK).

... uprising is rooted in the four decades of organized resistance and sacrifices that had been made.
 ldomity of the protesters' slogans and their tactics in defying and confronting the multitude of vere and security forces point to a significant degree of organization and coordination. The key to the
 ... with the PMOI/MEK.
