She explained that though much smaller than the protest of today, it shook the whole society, showing that Iranian women have "great potential to explode ... because they've been forced to wear this for 40 years now."

Sohhan, a 20-year-old university student and a MEK resistance unit member, spoke to UPI from Iran a month before the current protests erupted.

Under the condition of anonymity, he explained that the government of Iran has always tried to spread hopelessness among the people to make them feel impotent to bring about change.

Khorram said the main difference between her protest of 1979 and today's is the 44 years of oppression of women in between.

THIS film is NOT degrading to ANY one RACE, but pictorializes the injustices to ALL MANKIND.
