Iran: Young man at grave risk of execution in connection with protests amid 'killing spree'

The Iranian authorities must immediately halt an execution of people sentenced to death in relation to nationwide protests, Amnesty International said today, condemning the arbitrary execution of Mohammad Mehdi Karubi and layed Mohammad Hosseini on 7 January and warning that Mohammad Ghadafian and others risk the same fate.

On 2 January, the Supreme Court upheld the conviction and death sentence of Mohammad Ghadafian, 22, in connection with the ongoing nationwide protests, making his sentence final and raising fears that his execution is imminent. The Iranian authorities also announced two further protest-related death sentences imposed

It is estimated that the Iranian authorities persist in their state-sanctioned killing spree as they desperately seek to end the protests and hold to power by instilling fear among the public," said Uzma Eshaghy, Amnesty

Mohammad Ghobadiou's lawyer has filed a request for a judicial review of his case before the Supreme Court, which remains pending.

Executed after unfair sham trials

On 5 December 2022, a Revolutionary Court in Alborz province sentenced Mohammad Mehdi Karami and Seyed Mohammad Hosseini to death in a grossly unfair sham trial. They were also convicted of "spreading corruption on earth" (efsad-e fel arz) over the death of a Basij paramilitary agent during a protest on 3 November 2022.

The court convicted and sentenced them to death less than a week after the trial began on 30 November 2022. Before trial, state media aired their forced "confessions" and described them as "murderers", violating their right to presumption of innocence. Both were also denied access to lawyers of their own choosing.

Seyed Mohammad Hosseini subsequently revealed to his lawyer that the authorities forced him to "confess" under torture and other ill-treatment, such as kicking him until he lost consciousness, beating him on the soles of his feet with iron rods, and using electric shocks all over his body.

Their executions, which took place just two months after their arrests, were each carried out in secret and without prior notice to their lawyers and families.

Scores of protesters at risk

Amnesty International fears that scores of others face the death penalty in connection with protests, given that thousands of people have been arbitrarily arrested and indicted since protests erupted. They include Mohammad Boroughani who was sentenced to death by a Revolutionary Court in Tehran for "enmity against God" (moharebeh) in a grossly unfair sham trial. He was convicted for allegedly wielding a machete, setting fire to the governor's building and injuring a state agent. On 24 December, the Supreme Court upheld his conviction and death sentence. On 11 January, the Director of Public Relations of Iran's Supreme Court announced on Twitter that Mohammad Boroughani's death sentence has been suspended pending the outcome of a judicial review by the Supreme Court. Others at risk also in judicial review include Amir Hossein Takvistan, Jamshid Bakhshi, Manouchehr Mehman Navaz, Saleh Hosseini, Amirhossein Ghobadiou, and Mehdi Kazimi, who have all been convicted and sentenced to death since

Numerous others are either currently on trial or facing charges for crimes that carry the death penalty, including Akbarfar Mehdi Hosseini Hajilou, Mahsen Bezaradeh Ghazvini, Saeed Shirazi, Akbar Ghafari, Toomaj Salehi,
